Key Activities of Tebtebba

2017

In 2017, Tebtebba achieved its objectives and most of its planned activities and achieved significant gains in several key areas of work.

In relation to operationalization of indigenous peoples' sustainable, self-determined development (IPSSDD), we continued support for some partner indigenous peoples' organizations and communities in Asia, Africa and Latin America. In particular, Tebtebba provided direct support to seven partners under the Indigenous Peoples' Global Partnership on Climate Change, Forests and Sustainable Development:

1. Institut Dayakologi (ID) – Indonesia
2. Centre for Indigenous Peoples' Research and Development (CIPRED) – Nepal

3. Centre of Research and Development in Upland Areas (CERDA) – Vietnam
4. Lelewal – Cameroon
5. Indigenous Livelihoods Enhancement Partners (ILEPA) – Kenya
6. Centro de Culturas Indígenas el Perú (Chirapaq) – Peru
7. Conselho Indígena de Roraima (CIR) – Brazil

The support is in line with the scaling up of implementation of IPSSDD in select indigenous peoples' communities, which Tebtebba and its partners have agreed as their development framework

We sustained our work with partners in developing and implementing community monitoring and information processes and used generated data to support advocacies with their governments and in key global processes. Presently, the partners have shared that they are in the process of scaling-up the community-based monitoring and information systems (CBMIS) and support for sustainable traditional and innovative livelihoods. In the October 2017 workshop to assess CBMIS implementation and share lessons learned, 11 partners showed vibrant implementation and use of CBMIS in developing community plans, raising awareness, training of women and youth, and in advocacy with governments. An important work that has not yet been achieved was in relation to the finalization and launch of the CBMIS database management system that is supposed to aggregate local CBMIS data at national/ regional/global levels.

We continued to enhance capacities of partner indigenous organizations and their communities to monitor how indigenous peoples' rights are being respected, protected and promoted. This focus has been strengthened with the start of the implementation of the second phase of project on Indigenous Peoples and implementation of the Sustainable Development Goals/Indigenous Navigator.

This 3-year global project supported by the European Union is being implemented by a consortium of partners composed of the International Labour Organisation, Asia Indigenous Peoples Pact, Tebtebba, Forest Peoples Programme, International Work Group for Indigenous Affairs and the Danish Institute for Human Rights. Tebtebba is implementing the project with indigenous peoples' organizations in 3 countries (Philippines, Kenya and Tanzania). Aside from this, Tebtebba also manages the global component on engagement with SDG-related processes.

In the Philippines, community-based trainings/inception workshops were held in six target indigenous communities on rights, the SDGs and the Indigenous Navigator, which, together with CBMIS, are aimed at generating data, and monitoring rights protection and SDG implementation. We also finished the research on the situation of indigenous peoples in the Philippines, including situation of indigenous children. We continued to help enhance capacities of the Philippine Network of Indigenous Peoples' Structure and Indigenous Peoples' Organization for the Promotion of Traditional Knowledge and Wisdom (UPAKAT).

We further enhanced the organizational capacity of Tebtebba and was able to secure adequate funds. Several system audits were undertaken with recommendations on how to further strengthen policies and processes. These are feeding into revising the Manual of Operations, including finance policies. An evaluation of Tebtebba's work for the past 3 years has also been done. However, the planned strategic planning still needs to be undertaken.

At present, Tebtebba is still able to sufficiently raise funds from our funders to support our planned activities. Other areas where we have made significant advances include the following:

- We considerably increased our engagement with various Philippine government agencies and bodies. This is important in relation to influencing how government policies and programs are being crafted and implemented to ensure indigenous peoples' rights and developments are given recognition and support and pressuring government to abide by their international obligations. We increased our work with government agencies such as Department of Social Welfare and Development (DSWD), Philippine Statistics Authority, the environment department (DENR), Climate Change Commission, Commission on Human Rights, Department of Education, National Commission on Indigenous Peoples, the legislative bodies. Our engagement range from serving as resource persons, being members of government bodies (National Steering Committee/ Technical Working Group of DENR as National Designated Authority for GCF, peace panel), to providing inputs on several reports and bills.
- Work on GCF has rapidly advanced. The adoption of a GCF IP Policy has been a priority advocacy work of Tebtebba and partners. In 2017, we actively engaged in inputting to and led the consultation process on the draft of the IP Policy. (The GCF IP Policy was finally adopted in its recent Board Meeting this March 2018.) A research on engagement of indigenous peoples in the Readiness Phase of GCF in 5 countries was also undertaken and is supporting the advocacy work in the GCF.
